The Legend

All the world's a court,
Where some are lawyers, and the rest are lawed;
And life's an action to which all are parties.

Edward A. U. Valentine

To the Most Honorable . . .

Julius C. Bernstein

Here is a man . . .

a man dedicated to humanity and the development of its youth;
an educator exhaling wisdom, inspiring students with his intelligence;
a scholar exciting audiences with gifts of mind, tongue, and pen;
an executive discharging authority with dignity and decency;
an adjudicator commanding respect and attention from allies and adversaries alike.

Here is a man.

Brief

Justice is blind, she hath no eyes to see
Her great offender's awful misery.
From sight to soul no swift petitions speed
To stay the punishment for man's misdeed.

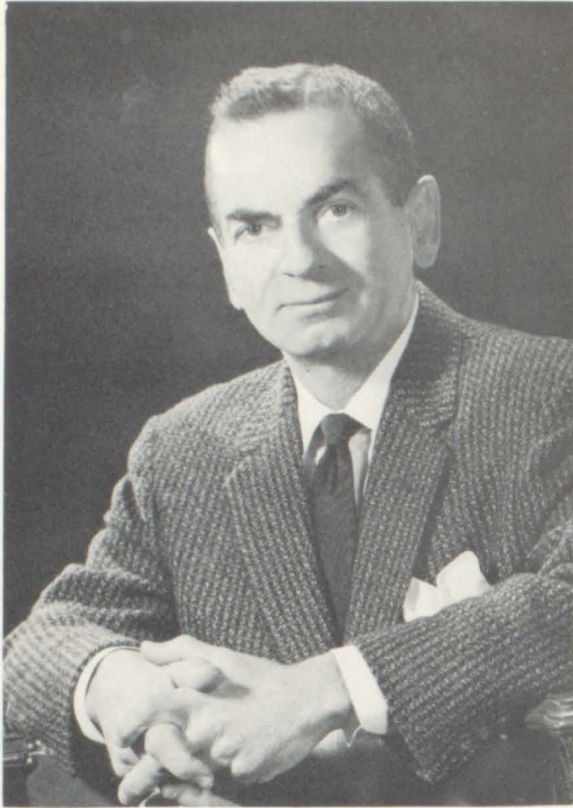

But ah, not deaf! The penitential prayer,
Reaching her heart compels her hand to spare.
With sympathy her soul is quick to thrill,
Disguised as Justice, she is Mercy still.

David E. Weingast

Principal

It is a tribute to the editors of the Legend that they have chosen justice as the theme for this yearbook. Of all man's aspirations over the years, the concept of justice has been among the foremost. When we contemplate the dimensions of injustice in our world, we realize that the struggle for a decent society must be waged more strongly than ever.

Justice, of course, is a word, an abstraction. Everybody says he believes in it. But we know that concepts of justice vary from land to land, and even within the borders of a nation. No country on earth has achieved the ideal. And in some countries, gross violations of justice are the general rule.

In our American democracy we have steadily reduced the number of unfair practices. Now, more than ever before in our history, the American people are enjoying the reality of justice. Though pockets of evil practices remain, they are being eliminated. This trend may from time to time be arrested, but its long, forward movement will continue.

In our relations with other nations, the United States has become a symbol of justice. Every people in the world knows that our government covets neither territory nor resources belonging to others; that the United States believes in the peaceful settlement of international differences; that fair and honorable dealings are part of our national code.

But the world, nevertheless, is plagued with injustice. Some peoples have yet to sample the meaning of civil liberties. Some peoples have yet to learn the meaning of economic freedom — the right to a job of one's choice at a decent wage. Some nations still use strong-arm methods against other countries. Injustice is still one of the ugly facts of life in our time.

As each of you goes forward to make his place in the world, keep alive your interest in this problem. Don't let your preoccupation with school or business or profession dim the zeal that animates you today. Don't let cynicism or disappointment with our imperfect world weaken your determination to improve our society.

If all of us, everywhere in the world, work together, we can achieve our great aim — justice under law. We can have it at home; we can have it among nations. It is up to you and to the young people of all countries.

We, the defendants,
found our defender . . .

Born from his counsel,
Our future aspirations;
From his faith in us,
Our faith in ourselves;
From his encouragement,
Our ambition to succeed;
And our success is his reward.

CASES

FOR

BERNARD J. FREIDBERG

Case for 216

There was a silent dignity enveloping Room 216 this morning. As I surveyed the empty and neatly arranged five (other times, seven, or even more) rows of seats, I, the flag, knew that freedom with order was all of democracy. Freedom we shall have, but order is interrupted by the entrance of Early Bird, Ronald Ratner, who prepares for the morning chess match. Bernadette Morris and Sue Grande stop talking about their boyfriends for a moment (but only for a moment) to observe the game.

Rita Chesler flashes a gift from her latest boyfriend, a sparkling ring which Rozzi Strauss and Judy Lieb miss because they are engaged in another battle for comb and mirror. I am sure Rozzi will win even though the mirror is Judy's. In struts Lois Donenfeld immediately greeted amorously at the door by our chairman and jazzman, Marv Baron.

Who's that screeching! Oh, it's only Sharon Edisis screaming at Sammy Fromkin, who insists on pulling her chair out from under her. Judy Schwartzstein, busy copying last night's French homework, yells loudly enough so that Phyllis Vitale's meditations as to whether or not she should see Mr. La Penna before mailing in her college applications are disturbed.

Dave Braun and Jerry Blumenfeld, our avid baseball fans, are listening to the results of yesterday's game on Dave's transistor radio. I'll never get to hear the game, for I'm eavesdropping on Denni Sarbone, Layne Schanerman, and Judy Kirsch who are in deep discussion concerning the merits of young marriages. Merle Starkman would like to participate but she is too busy trying to take attendance. Mr. Freidberg and briefcase enter only to be assailed by Rona Ordower who demands to know if she is having a surprise Spanish test second period. With disinclination, he turns on his heel which practically steps on the fifty-eight inches of Sue Bohrer. She is about to get a consensus of opinion on whether or not she should have her hair cut.

Boing! At the sound of the 8:25 bell, John Rountree dashes in, grabs a New York Times, and runs out again. Oh, where is he going? He should know by now he doesn't have time to go to his locker.

And now my favorite part of the day, the morning exercises. Mary Jackson reads a psalm from her Bible. And then, the moment of salute from my people. I feel pride run through my stars and stripes. "I pledge allegiance to the flag . . ." Ugh . . . What is that weird sound coming from the far corner of the room?! Naomi Lampf is reciting the pledge in Chinese. Yesterday she tried it in Measury Language.

I look to the sports corner and am aware immediately that Bob Zupko and Steve Soroka are arguing over last week's football game. "Speaking of sports," brags Valentine Zasimowicz, "Weequahic won it's first soccer game yesterday!" Ah, American competition. One would think that all this noise would be distracting, but it doesn't bother newspaper-immersed Sylvia Wilkins and Warren Schwartzman. Leroy, Leroy! Will you stop looking on the floor for your New York Times! It's on your desk for a change. (Carole Haberman and Rozzi Bonas wonder whether skipping into this homeroom was such a good idea.)

Mr. Freidberg emits a whistle and screams for some order. As he reads the day's notices, the passing bell rings. Everyone rushes to begin his activities for the day, as I and all hear him bellow, "Detention for everyone!"

LOUIS R. STAMELMAN

Case for 224

Thump! Thump! Court is now in session and homeroom period commences as Mr. Stamelman pounds me on his crowded desk. You see, I am the gavel that inhabits, not inhibits, room 224. My impossible task is to maintain order in chaos. I have just been volunteered to intercept a football hurled toward Warren “doesn’t need the practice” Bratter. Soon I shall have to quell the underlying causes for all homeroom revolutions — The Awesome Foursome — Marty, Moe, Phil, and Joe. For the moment, however, they are conscientiously trying to teach the class song to Chester Britz and Gerry Edisis. Their Heaven, I’m in Heaven is drowned by Old MacDonald enthusiastically sung by Majorettes Pilchman and Margolin. Elaine Sattler, Mary Starr, and Nadine Small and theme song, Love Makes the World Go Round, provide the third dissonance.

I may be requested to referee Elliot and Robert’s argument: Elliot claims he gave Robert a nickel for the Red Cross yesterday, and Robert dissents not mildly. Neil Schulman contributes a dime to make peace. I sympathize with Marv Schwam, lover of serenity, who is hoping to recuperate from Legend, Miss Feitel, and Big Banking Day. (No one has ever banked here.) His solitude is disturbed as Sue Steiger coquettishly wins Lou Stamelman’s forgiveness for sitting on his desk, while fellow Honor Society officer Marty Reisberg further pacifies the chief by composing another edition of the Lou-dedicated daily, The Stammerer.

Thump! Thump! Court will please come to order for morning exercises. The telephone rings and postpones worship. Lillian announces that the office wants Sam Cohen, and Manly Stan, the general information man, proclaims that there is no one here by that name. Perhaps he’s wrong — Edie, taking attendance, finds thirty-one students in a room with thirty on roll.

My right arm, Lou Stamelman, has once more demanded my services, this time to alter the course of the eraser activated by Bobby Cohen on a dare from outfielders, Tarr, Pfister, and Volz. Matthew Paul, peddling tickets to a Ranger hockey game, has just been hit by an improperly aimed pitch. Zee decides the proceedings are excellent ingredients for an English composition and she explains the idea to Iris. Theater expert Elaine Levenson, engrossed in Show Business, doesn’t realize the possibilities of the subject as a plot for a play. I am now being used to administer official Punishment 468 to Marc Abramson who came in late. I may appeal to the Legal Aid Society!!!

Decorum will never win the case against exuberance in homeroom 224, but with warmth and nostalgia, I must note: I’ve grown accustomed to their looks, accustomed to their smiles, accustomed to their ways.

JAMES LYNCH

Case for 307

Ouch! Who's using that dreadful gavel on me? Could it be Mr. Lynch? It's difficult, at the least, to be in my position — a desk can look out, but it's hard to look up.

What a gathering of suspects! Mary Whitmire is perfecting her latest dance step to Sylvia Redding's jazz interpretation of Graduation Day. Anxious for a mirror in homeroom, Elaine Silberman gets ready signatures for her petition from Charlene Krueger and Martha Schissler, who are forever lamenting the humidity's effect on their hair. Directed at more important things, Ellen Brody bemoans the blank stares she receives in place of Red Cross money. To add insult, Fred Keller and Joel Cohen are demanding red feathers without making monetary contributions first.

I'll be consigned to a used lumber yard if I continue seeing double. Thank heavens! It's the Fisher twins (and batons). Fascinated by their demonstrations are Joe Meola and Arthur Garrett. Ray Goldstein is hopping from seat to seat in search of somebody's, anybody's, history homework. Pam Trugman extols the virtues of the Calumet, but her quiet voice is barely audible above the hubbub made by Steve Perlman, Phil Rosenbaum, and Steve Rosen, as they discuss Weequahic's chances in Saturday's game.

I'm glad to see that Noah Fasten, our fledgling Picasso, is casually doodling pictures on his notebook cover rather than on my wooden top. Naomi is calling the roll, not without difficulty, for, from Phyllis Lerner bursts, "Na, I've just got to talk to you." Self-effacing Robin Wolfe responds shyly to Judy Milchman and Carol Weinstein who are admiring her outfit. Bob Johnson is desperately trying to extract twelve cents for the New York Times from Bob Williams and Mae Robinson, but they can't see the merits of reading a paper that has no comics. As the hands of the clock reach 8:29 and my reprieve, I am further startled by the wind created as Sally Schanerman dashes in and is met head-on by Artie Lipton and his latest joke. Gail Sperber, seemingly unaware of all this confusion, is quietly finishing her homework. Mr. Lynch reminds all that it is getting late. Mike Silver picks up the Bible and after a wait, quiet descends upon homeroom 307. I am at peace until tomorrow.

LAWRENCE SCHULMAN

Case for 319

8:09:58, 8:09:59, 8:10:00 — gangway! It's a good thing these dainty kids are on schedule so I can brace myself each morning. One time Arlene De Leon arrived fifty seconds early, and I suffered a compound fracture of my bottom hinge. Even now, my black and blue panel won't heal if basketball star, Fred Dale, doesn't find some other door for a backboard. I've discovered that basketball isn't the only sport that requires teamwork. Our three scientists, Nancy Levy, Bob Friedlander, and Richie Hoffman, are copying each other's homework again. Why bless my timber! Bobbie Helfer came to school today! Ronny Denner's mouth waters as Karen Jason gives him a detailed account of last night's dinner while Roger Yaney lustily devours the sports section. Oh, here we go again. I'll need a new varnish job on my exterior if Carolyn Allen, our gridiron good-looker, doesn't practice the latest twirling routine on the other side of this courtroom.

Looks like the strain of all these months has finally taken its toll of my poor mahogany eyes. Oh, what a relief! It's only the twins, Dave and Mike, both answering to Larry Schulman's "Hey, Kessler!" Gosh, what a shame, Harvey Feldman's great mind is wasted on the task of extracting money from our frugal clan. (Doris Knapp, banker, sympathizes.) Peggy Pryor and Brenda Raney chatter about the delights of teen-age love as Bob Balis strains his ears for clues.

Barbara Chesner just added another stain to my already maimed shellac finish by hitting me with a badly-aimed squirt of spray-net. Judy Niebergall and Barbara Dombrowski are trying to do their English homework in this din, but studying is impossible because close to their ears is laughing Dennis Cipriano, too convulsed to sell football tickets. Adding to the racket is Ronald Stewart, who's forever whistling the theme from "Peter Gunn." Amidst the tumult, Irv Yoskowitz and Milton Litt are deeply engrossed in a game of chess under the watchful eyes of Allan Heyman, as Billy "Norman Rockwell" Battle sketches the three enthusiasts.

Secretary Pat Bauer searches vainly for Clarice Bradman, but I, being two-faced, can see Clarice in the corridor deep in conversation. Oof! Just got hit in the stomach by Fern Klurman and a big stack of Calumets.

Ah — wouldn't it be heavenly to return to those days when I was a healthy, unmarried, handsome door, and not a part of the framework of 319? No, it wouldn't! Do I need these destructive kids to shorten my life span? Yes!!

DAVID T. STAMELMAN

Case for 326

My position as official bench in homeroom 326 is not the sinecure one might expect. Although my job is sedentary, I am constantly in use as a temporary resting place for the conglomeration of equipment 326'ers mislay. I am also a residence for whichever student is out of Dave Stamelman's good graces. Pow! — my first wallop! Sharon Schechter just deposited ten copies of the New York Times on my back. Compared to these, the Calumets, which Mabel brings in once a month, are a treat.

Sondra, having difficulty checking attendance because Pat Musto and Billy Carfagno like to share a seat, has jumped on me to count noses. Her efforts are further complicated by Eddie Muster's sightseeing outside the door and Jerry Krotenberg's wandering around the room to recruit new members for the Graham Brothers Fan Club. Ira Stein, Richard Trugman, and Barry Ontell encourage him.

The Bible is removed from its niche on my lap by Saul Lemkowitz who has ceased correcting Sandford's and Fred's chem formulae to conduct morning exercises. The serenity of worship is short-lived, for Gilly Lustig, class clown, chooses this moment to frighten the two Annes, Grindlinger and Gray, with his pet mouse. Mr. Stamelman protests against the ensuing commotion by slamming his foot on my back, but Leo diverts him (and saves me from additional injury) with the vital question, "Do we have school on Election Day?" Sandy Swanger, always ready for a song, suggests a chorus of the Star-Spangled Banner to ease tension.

At last we settle down to our respective homeroom occupations. As I nurse the wounds of the past seven minutes, Beryl and Lynne diligently finish their homework. Bill Swift and Herb Goldstein discuss cars. Charles arouses Wendy's curiosity in a snapshot by trying to hide it from her. Elsa, Mary, and Cherre reminisce about former terms in a cafeteria homeroom under Mrs. Farber's guidance, and Gale reminds them how the class repeated The Lord's Prayer five times one morning before it was said in unison. Phyllis Bernstein, our latest addition, who sits at the front desk and keeps me company, is interrogated dramatically by Allen Bain, "Have you had your Legend picture taken yet?" Judy Isacoff meanwhile is collecting for Junior Red Cross, selling O.B.A. cards, and writing a Calumet article all at the same time.

Eight-forty, and the daily race to the door to avoid collision with the entering first period class commences. Naturally I am upturned in the stampede, but I am not perturbed. A kind student will notice my plight and will set me aright. I will have the entire day to recuperate.

Transcript

We were Freshmen,
The Class of January, 1960.
Young, small, uprooted were we,
Thrown together because of a common bond.
A minor decision had been won by us all;
We now were faced with one much more vital.
Did we belong here?
We would make ourselves belong.
Were we apprehensive?
Yes!
Were we ignorant of the laws?
Not for long.
What must we do to prove ourselves?
We were enlightened:
We must grow in spirit —
We must mature in our ideals —
We must absorb and retain —
We must open our minds and hearts to knowledge —
How much we accomplished was up to us.
Were we limited in time?
Yes — we had four years.
Were we alone?
No — we would get dedicated assistance.
Did we accept the challenge?
We did!
Were we worthy?
Time would tell.

We were Juniors.
Our triumphant politicians rose to the top,
And those not so triumphant bowed gracefully.
But it was these last that had really gained — in maturity.
We suffered through physics and M.A.P.,
We took aptitude tests and how-to-take-a-test tests.
We learned our fate if we lost this case on Prison Day.
But weren't we being stifled and inhibited in complete growth?
Not at all!
We learned of social development at our 3B Picnic —
Where a few wild ones of our clan decided to try a swim,
But it was judo, and hiking and devouring for the rest.
We saved pentup emotions for the 3A Square Dance:
It was there that exuberance was displayed to the hilt.
Not only were we learning to mature with books and socials,
We were even given a chance to test business sense —
Selling pens and cartridges and more pens.
Soon the third year had flown.
We had proved ourselves worthy of a fourth —
That would be the last chance for victory!

We were Sophomores.
We transferred to our permanent ground —
Its name — the Wigwam on the Hill,
Its size — immense,
Its make-up — baffling.
Madisonites joined our ranks.
(They, too, were determined to win this decision.)
We pursued activities to prove our worth:
We joined French Club, Math Club and such:
Our creative members gave to the Calumet.
We tackled our studies (sometimes a bit lethargically.)
We accepted criticism — we were grateful.
We planned our unprecedented 2A Dance.
Our bubbling enthusiasm proved that we were sincere.
Above all else, we were given an adviser,
A friend, a consort, a defender.
What did he do for us?
Everything.
What did he ask of us?
Our faith in him.

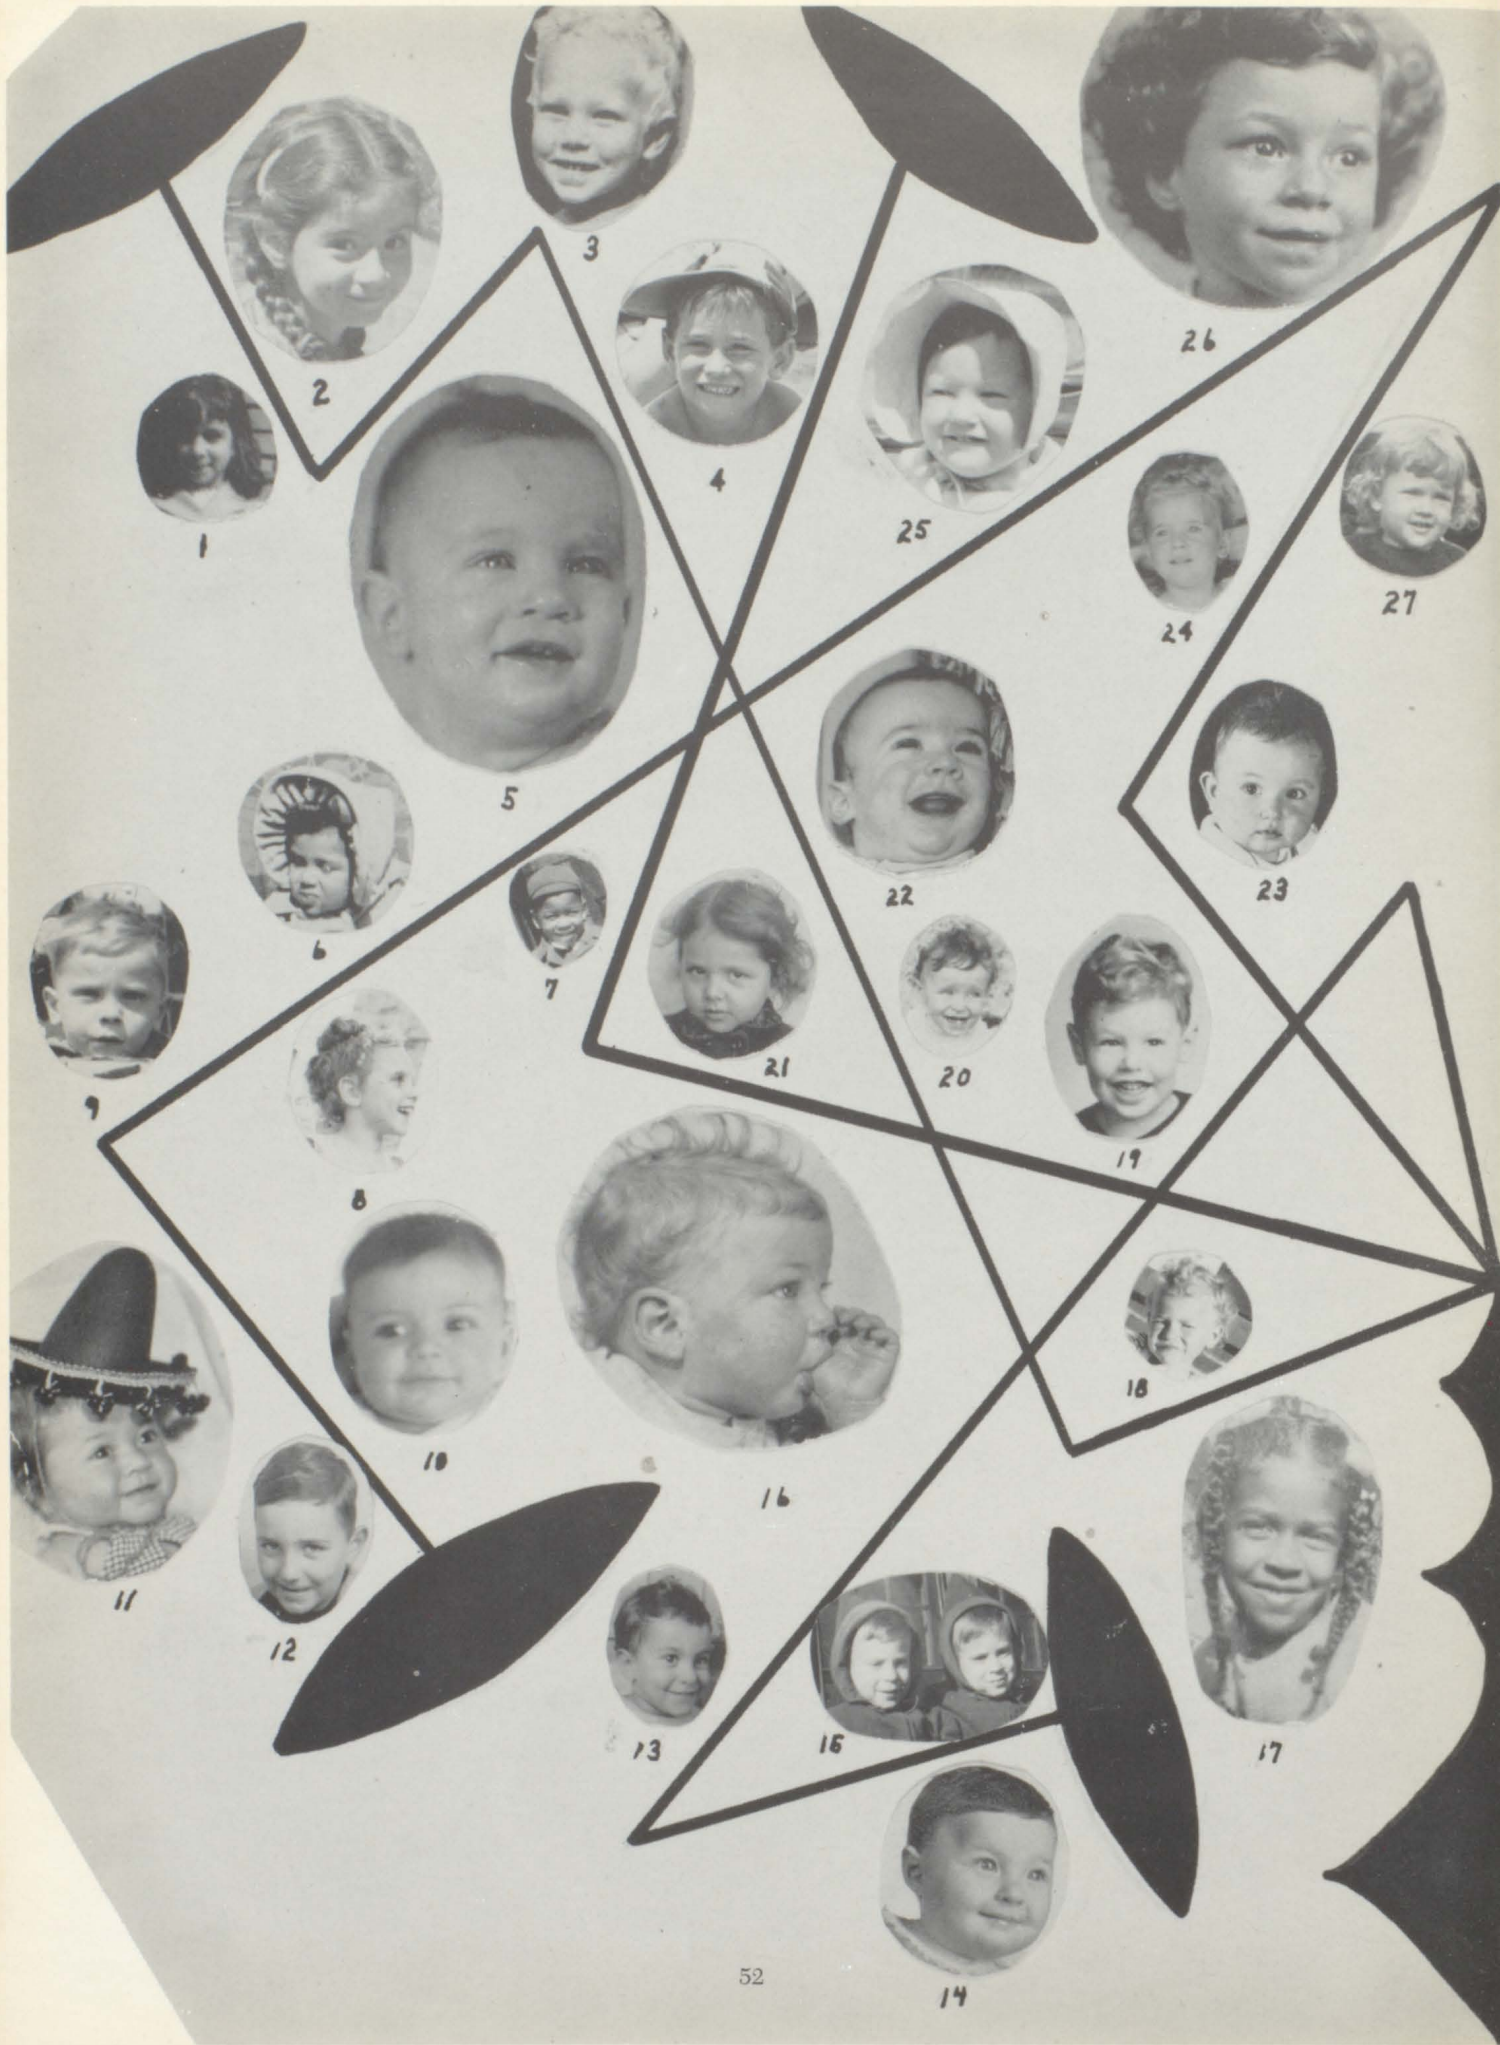

We were Seniors,
The Class of January, 1960.
Our chests were swelled, our heads were high,
We were at the top.
We babbled of permits and cars and licenses;
We squawked at chemistry and calculus;
We experienced joy and nostalgia at our achievements;
We experienced a sort of "Heaven on Earth";
We were in a suspended void at a time of great introspection.
Where would we go once this decision was won?
Some of us waited for that magic acceptance letter to arrive;
Others would enter the 9:00 to 5:00 world;
Some would sail the ocean blue;
And then there were those dreaming of a band of gold.
But many of us were filled with uncertainties:
Where would we meet our destiny?
Would we be able to win future decisions?
A great flood of events shook us to reality:
Torch Day was come and gone;
The magic of the Prom was a fuzzy dream;
G Day was now — we had waited four years for it —
Four years of hopes and apprehensions and obscurities.
Now we knew (only now could we know)
We would never see another more wonderful four years.
The time for the decision had come.
The jury was to declare its verdict.
Had we learned?
We had.
Had we matured?
We had.
Had we won?
We had.
This too shall pass.

Verdicts

DR. WEINGAST	I'm sure, boys and girls, that we'll have a happy relationship.
MR. BERNSTEIN	We entered Weequahic together; I'm just leaving a little before you.
MR. C. SELTZER	You don't have to have a hop or a prom.
MR. D. STAMELMAN	I am extremely honored to have a 4A homeroom.
MR. L. STAMELMAN	You talk well with your new teeth.

6. Upon recommendation of a special faculty committee, the scholastic rating for admission to the Honor Society will be lowered to 3.0. — D. E. W.
7. There will be a meeting after school of senior B's who will decide whether the prom will be in the U.N. General Assembly Building or the Waldorf Astoria.
— Mrs. Litzky
8. All chemistry and physics students are hereby notified of the discontinuation of labs as of February 1, 1960. — Mr. Martino

Settlement

In due settlement of the case in question, the Defendants, the Class of January, 1960, hereby make the following awards:

- TO DR. WEINGAST — Principal, Weequahic High School, Newark's best, with its dedicated teachers, earnest students, forty-two minutes homework in each major, and occasional bomb scares.
- TO MISS BOWERMAN — Vice Principal, extra hours with which to manipulate next term's schedules.
- TO MR. GOLDBERG — a public address system all his own.
- TO MR. SELTZER — four more years of wisdom than he had when he met us.
- TO MR. L. STAMELMAN — a one-volume, all inclusive encyclopedia, containing complete statistics of all football games won by Weequahic in the past ten years.
- TO MR. D. STAMELMAN — fond memories of his homeroom's all-too-short association with him.
- TO MR. LYNCH — a couch on which to practice elementary psychology.
- TO MR. FREIDBERG — a prom hall, sans fees or headaches.
- TO MR. SCHULMAN — a trust fund to provide the next five years' salary for an auditor.
- TO MISS FEITEL — a challenging job in the Foreign Service.
- TO MR. EPSTEIN — one thousand dollars worth of Legend ads to help the June class.
- TO MR. SCOCOZZA — a bi-annual assembly program devoted entirely to serious music.
- TO MRS. SCHORN — thermometers that register above 98.6.
- TO THE CAFETERIA STAFF — first, second, third, and eighth period lunch.
- TO THE CUSTODIANS — orange and brown brooms.
- TO THE ENGLISH DEPARTMENT — a revised edition of Tressler's English Inn Ackshun.
- TO THE SCIENCE DEPARTMENT — a lab marking machine.
- TO THE FOREIGN LANGUAGE DEPARTMENT — illustrated proverbs in languages taught and to come.
- TO THE MATH DEPARTMENT — M.A.P. 10, 11, and 12.
- TO THE SOCIAL STUDIES DEPARTMENT — an interview with Muzzey to discover the man behind the book.
- TO THE GYM DEPARTMENT — forty-seven button-down paisley pinnies for the girls and the same number of non-walking sweat socks for the boys.
- TO THE COMMERCIAL DEPARTMENT — a resident typewriter repairman.
- TO THE FRESHMEN — a handy magnetic compass guaranteed to find classes before the late bell.
- TO THE SOPHOMORES — the newly-published pocket edition of Be Kind to Your Inferiors.
- TO THE JUNIORS — a course on how to pay dues in three easy installments.
- TO THE SENIOR B's — the awareness of the pleasure of their position.
- TO WEEQUAHIC HIGH SCHOOL — appreciation for the fact that it has played a most vital part in shaping our destiny.
- TO OURSELVES — self-confidence and self-reliance with which to meet the challenges of tomorrow.

Football

Two members of the graduating class are on this year's football team — four-year veterans Warren Bratter and Robert Zupko.

Co-Captain Bratter was the offensive mainstay from the tailback position, where he displayed fine running, kicking, and passing skills. Warren's greatest football thrill came in the Weequahic-Linden game of 1958, when he, scoring the first Indian touchdown of the season for an early, but temporary, lead, won the game for Weequahic in the final fifty seconds of play.

In recognition of his outstanding performances, Bratter was awarded All-City Honors in his sophomore, junior and senior years, and All-Essex-Union and Essex County berths in his junior and senior years.

Zupko, a powerfully-muscled youth, was noted for his sharp defensive play from the linebacker position, where his bone-jarring tackles forced many an opponent to part with the pigskin. On offense, Zupko was a vicious blocker from the all-important single-wing quarterback slot, and the backfield men were appreciative of his fine talents.

Always playing the game with reckless abandon, Bob remembers especially the crisp autumn afternoon that Weequahic, again in the throes of a dismal season, was shut out by Thomas Jefferson. Although Weequahic was defeated, Zupko, who repeatedly skirted the opponents for huge chunks of yardage, made this a hard-to-come-by victory for Thomas Jefferson.

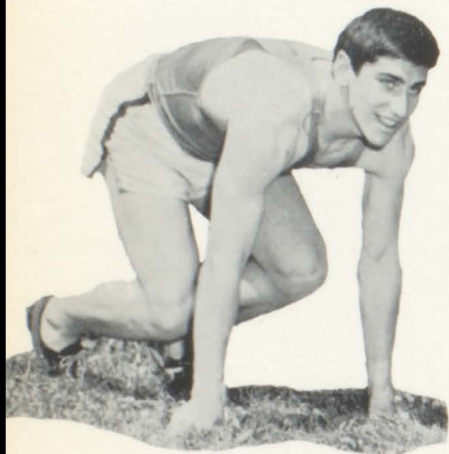

Coach Lou Stamelman will search far and wide for players to fill uniforms 33 and 34, those sported by Warren Bratter and Robert Zupko.

Track

This year's graduating class was represented by Warren Bratter, Robert Zupko, and Martin Reisberg on the varsity track team, which, under the guidance of Coach Joe Nerenberg, enjoyed a season of varying successes.

Bratter, who entered at least three events in each meet, was the team's top point-getter, and he culminated a fine season with places in the 220 and javelin in the City Meet. Bratter ran the 440 Leg on the State 1½ Mile Relay Championship Team and the 440 Leg of the 2½ Mile Relay Team at the National Championship Penn Relays.

Zupko earned many valuable points for the team in dual meet competition throwing the javelin and putting the shot. He finished his track career with a good performance in the shotput, which earned him a place in the City Meet competition.

Reisberg, a two-year veteran, was a valuable asset to the team in the hurdles and sprints. His athletic endeavors were always characterized by his high spirits and willingness to learn. Marty finished his track career with a fine effort in the 180 yard low-hurdles and secured for himself a place in the City Meet.

Baseball

The baseball team will lose a fine player. Marvin Baron, the stalwart catcher, developed a real baseball sense under Coach Spike Schwartz's guidance. His unerring arm kept the opposing runners fixed to their bases. Baron's voice behind the plate will surely be missed.

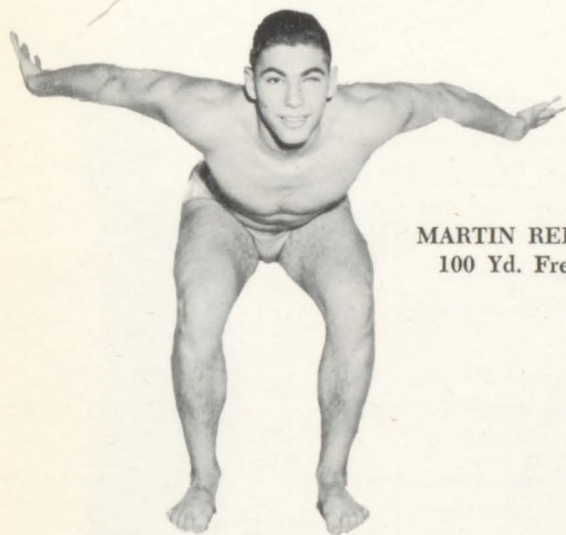

The team will also lose a three year member in Warren Bratter, who occupied both infield and outfield positions. As a junior, Bratter received All-City mention. His speed and continual chatter kept the team on its toes.

Swimming

The City Championship swimming team will sorely miss Captain Martin Reisberg. Reisberg is the possessor of many medals and trophies for his prowess in four years of participation on the team. During Marty's tenure on the team, the mermen captured three City Championship titles in four years.

Basketball

Fred Dale, the lone graduating member of the basketball team, will be remembered for his showy play-making and accurate shooting. Dale, a member for two years, performed excellently with the 1958 North Jersey Champs "Cinderella" team. Fred proved that long hours of practice and perseverance pay.

No longer considered a minor sport, soccer is fast becoming one of Weequahic's top athletic activities. Coached by Joe Nerenberg, the team clinched the City League titles in 1958 and 1959. The boys finished both years with outstanding won and lost records.

To experienced Australian soccer expert, Val Zasmowicz, a position on Weequahic's team provided the opportunity for fine all-around play which earned him All-County honors and the distinction of being the team's high scorer.

Phil Gerson, a three year veteran, was a hard-charging, rough-house fullback, who loved nothing better than strong body contact to challenge his skills.

Charlie Hershkowitz, an agile booter, was a fine team player and playmaker, whose passes helped set up those all-important goals.

Eddie Muster, also a triple year vet, follows in a line of fine soccer players. His skill and know-how were instrumental in guiding and steadying the team.

Roger Yaney, the goalie, was noted for his colorful acrobatic antics about the goal.
